November 28, 2016

The Canadian Broiler Hatching Egg Producers Association (CBHEPA), created in 1986, represents producers from British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Ontario and Quebec.

CBHEPA is launching its 2017 Broiler Breeder Research Grant aimed at providing incentive for university students to pursue research activities in the field of incubation and production of broiler hatching eggs.

In 2017, the Broiler Breeder Research Program will provide grants to one or two students (3rd year or graduate students). This grant will provide an opportunity for a student to perform a short-term broiler breeder research project at a University or research facility in Canada. This program is open to students in Poultry Science in Canada.

CBHEPA would appreciate if you could distribute the attached submission forms to students that you believe may be interested in participating into the Broiler Breeder Research Scholarship Program.

The deadline for submitting an application for the CBHEPA Broiler Breeder Research Grant is February 1, 2017.

Should you require further information, do not hesitate to contact Nicole Duval at (613) 232-3023 ext. 2662 or info@chep-poic.ca
